

Frother from Mexico.

The New-Orleans Polygraph gives the following items from a paper from Vera Cruz, by the steamer Tivoli:

On the 10th inst., an insurrection named Isaac of the Cross was commenced, the ancient faith of his forefathers, and was publicly baptised a Christian in the church of Santa Vera Cruz. The Governor of the district, Gen. Don Pedro María Ayala, was a sponsor on the occasion, and bestowed on the new-nomine the name of José María del Pueblo Esteban Ayala. It is said that a sum of $100,000.00 pesos was given to the church, the expense of which was defrayed by Gen. Ayala.

Juan Ramirez, the principal chief of the insurgents in the Sierra, was mortally wounded by his captors on the 21 inst. Gen. Bustamante, in concluding this speech to the Supreme Government, congratulates the country that the long-pending intestine war is now ended.

Don Juan Navaarro has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment for libeling the Secretary of War in an article in the Palacio.

The subject of the Mexican debt has been before Congress since its opening, upward of three months ago, and it was expected that the Committee on public accounts would have reported on it by the 1st of November, up to the latest date, nothing definite had been done, regarding the several plans submitted for gradually extinguishing it. Mr. Robertson, the agent of the English creditors, had tired out by the delay, and was about to leave the country, to give an account of the failure of his mission.

The Government has issued orders to establish four military colonies in the Sierra Gorda, the seat of the late insurrection. They are to be in places dependent upon the coast, and to be called San Luis Potosí, Querétaro, Guadalajara, and San Luis Potosí. They are to be organized like those on the frontier, and after four years' residence the colonists may become a resident population. This is done with a view to reawaken the Indians, who now constitute the mass of the population, and to give them a sense of security and hope.

It is also intended to recruit the army with 600 men and six pieces of artillery to Zacatecas, for the purpose of preserving order, in the difficulty between the Governor, Gómez, and the Legislature of that State.

The absorptive attempts had lastly failed at Ciudad Victoria, at the head of the Valley of the Rio Grande, where the rebels had gathered near the mountains, toward organizing another Revolution. The prime movers were the Santonians or friends of the ex-Dictator. By the end of the Government none of them came to a head, and with the exception of a few insignificant attacks the display of force by the authorities was sufficient to put an end to the order.

The Government has published a decree of Congress permitting the importation of bills of exchange for importations, with a maximum value of $1,000,000.00 pesos. The Mexican Customs House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish, at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant-General of many different States of the Republic.

We find the following list of papers from the city of Mexico, sent to us by our correspondent in El Siglo de los Hombres, to the number of 100,000 copies, were sent to the Mexican Custom-House during the last three months of the present year. The Administration also apportioned for an extension of the time, but Congress did not act on the subject. The bill, however, was discontinued, and the period of payment, and has been left to be paid down by the discontents, no paper or certificates of any kind were to be received.

Miguel Hidalgo and Bucio were about to give a speech of Concerts at Querétaro. Hére had left that city for San Juan del Rio.

The Government, realizing the loss of dilligence and transparency between Vera Cruz and the city of Mexico, have proposed to the Government to establish,

at their own expense, an armed force of 400 men, to secure treasure from the state of Veracruz, between the coast and the interior, and to recruit the army, and the chief of the Republic, the troops will materially increase, which will accelerate the march of the prosperity of the country.

Gen. Don Juan de la Cosa, well known for his valor and skill, and for the conduct of treasure largely dispatched from Guadalajara and San Luis Potosí to Tampico, was appointed to the command of the city of Mexico highly respected as a soldier and a citizen.

He had successfully filled the posts of Governor and Commandant